Conway Center Co-Founders to Instruct Family Business Course at ODU

Columbus, OH – Ohio Dominican University (ODU) welcomes Conway Center for Family Business cofounders J. Richard Emens, J.D. and Beatrice Wolper, J.D. as adjunct instructors this fall. Emens and Wolper, who lead the region's only organization dedicated to helping family business leaders grow and transition their business, will teach Building, Operating and Passing on a Family Business. The eightweek course will begin on Oct. 16. Classes will be held from 6 to 9:30 p.m. on Thursdays on ODU's main campus at 1216 Sunbury Road, Columbus, 43219.

To register for the class, contact ODU's Office of Undergraduate Admissions at 614-251-4500 or admissions@ohiodominican.edu by Oct. 1.

Building, Operating and Passing on a Family Business will examine critical factors related to growth, success and succession. Participants, both traditional students and family business leaders, also will discuss how to manage family dynamics in the context of the business, manage family member entrance and exit, and selling or passing on the business.

"Attending the Family Business course at ODU will provide valuable insight and practical applications for key areas of family-owned businesses, including growth, communication and succession," Emens said.

Wolper and Emens serve on the Conway Center for Family Business' Advisory Board. Emens is the executive director of the center. The not-for-profit Conway Center, located on the ODU campus, has 160 family business members and 34 service provider members, which have more than 17,000 Central Ohio employees.

"Students and family business leaders who complete this course will gain a new understanding of family business dynamics that will help drive the success and longevity of their own family businesses," Wolper said.
